HISTORY

A little History on the Handbag

Who invented the handbag?

In 1841, Yorkshire entrepreneur Samuel Parkinson, whose Butterscotch confectionary was appointed to the British royal household, wanted to treat his wife to a custom-made set of hand luggage. He had noticed that her purse was too small and not made of a sturdy enough material for traveling.

When was the first handbag made?

The world's oldest purse was discovered in Germany in 2012. It was studded with dog teeth and dated from between 2,500 and 2,200 B.C. By 1300 however, fashion had clearly moved on. The world's oldest handbag is a 700-year-old-clutch discovered in the city of Mosul in Northern Iraq.

When did handbags become popular?

The conspicuous wealth and consumer culture of the 1980s produced large, flashy, highly decorated status bags. The handbag, in these times, served as a status symbol, with the richest women carrying the most expensive bags.

What is the difference between bag and purse?

In the UK, purse is also used for bigger bags that hold more stuff. And in America, both words are used to refer to the same kind of bag. A purse is used to describe a bag with straps that can be worn over the shoulder. ... While purse and handbags are remarkably similar, most people agree that handbags are roomier than purses.

Handbags

It was during the ancient Egyptian era where the first handbags were used. The evidence was recorded on 14th-century hieroglyphics. It was not uncommon for ancient Egyptian men to carry pouches (that resembled purses or handbags) which they would tie around their waists to carry tools and items in.

Do you know that Louis Vuitton burns all its unsold bags? This rumour appears to be true. If the bags are not sold, the company just burns them to prevent marking a lower price in them.

The developing technological advancements during the 17th century paved the way for the creation of bags made of various fabrics. The increase in train travel and the growing number of railroad constructions means that people needed a practical and spacious item that would carry and store their important belongings. And so, the handbag was invented!

It is said that an average woman has six handbags.

The first handbag with a zipper was introduced by Hermes in 1923. Before that, bags were typically closed by drawstrings, since they were a common accessory used to carry coins.

If given the chance to splurge, 22% of women said they would choose a handbag, while only 9% would spend on shoes.

In the days of rationing during the World War II era, Gucci started to use canes as bag handles because leather was scarce.

Nowadays though, this piece has become fashionable. During the early 20th century, handbags were called "briefcases" as they were once considered as male accessories. Funny, because you cannot call a man's briefcase as a "handbag" these days.

How many words can you make out of the above word? There are 45 possible words.

Good Luck!

1. There are 27 bones, 29 joints and at least 123 named ligaments in the human hand.
2. What sets our hands apart from other animals is our opposable thumbs—this means our thumbs and fingers can work together (fun fact: koala bears also have opposable thumbs).
3. You cannot get a tan on your palm and underside of your fingers.
4. Fingerprints are a completely unique DNA imprint that is different in every single human being. No two people in the world have the same fingerprints.
5. There are tons of words that include the word ‘hand’: handy, handwriting, handiwork, handle, handbag, handsome, handball, etc.
6. The average hand length for adult women is 6.7 inches. The average length for men is 7.4 inches.
7. Fingers do not have muscles—tendons in our fingers are moved by the muscles of the forearm.
8. Men tend to have longer ring fingers than index fingers—girls vice versa.
9. Hand surgeons say that the index finger is the best one to lose—if you had a choice. The index finger is needed the least.
10. Your fingernails show your state of health—they can indicate problems such as mineral or vitamin deficiencies, liver trouble, thyroid, or anaemia. Some warning signs of deficiencies that show up on your nails may be that they are brittle, pale or spotted.
11. The colour of the nails and those small “moons” on each nail can identify the quality of oxygen level of the bloodstream and blood circulation.
12. Our fingers are even more sensitive than the eyes—the fingertips have many receptors responsible for sending messages to the brain.
13. The vein on your ring finger is called Venna Amaris—it has a direct line with the human heart and is known as the vein of love. That is why we wear an engagement ring on the left hand’s finger!
14. Nails stop growing after death.
15. Structurally, fingernails are modified hairs.

I told my friend yesterday that her handbag looked rather ugly,
I ensured her it was nothing purse-onal.

A woman and her husband are driving down the highway, when suddenly - splat - they have hit something furry.

The woman pulls over, gets out and looks behind the car. A little bunny is squashed on the side of the road. The man, coming up behind him, says "Oh poor little guy."

"It's OK," says the woman, "I've got just the thing." She goes back, rummages in her handbag, and comes back with a spray can. She takes off the lid and generously sprays it over the rabbit.

It pops back up onto its feet, waves at them, and scurries a few meters into the bushes. Then it pauses, turns around and waves at them, and scampers off a bit further. It pauses, turns around and waves yet again. This continues until it is out of sight, hopping and waving.

"That's amazing!" says the man, "What was that?"

She passes him the can and he reads the label on the side - "Hair Restorer with Permanent Wave".

If I had a penny for every time my wife and I argued about money

She would spend it on a handbag.
